

THE REPUBLICAN CONVENTION.

The state republican convention did its work expeditiously. It is seldom indeed that any state convention performs its whole work in a single session. For some of the nominations there was a lively contest; but none of the struggles was witnessed so that sometimes leads to protracted strifes on these occasions. No doubt this was due to the fact that the strife of factions in the republican party in this state is at lower ebb now than at any time for ten years past. This is a circumstance noted by every observer.

The candidates presented by the convention will command the respect of the people and the vote of the republicans of the state. The nomination of Mr. George by the unanimous voice of the convention, was a just recognition of his ability and earnestness which he has evinced in his endeavor to serve the state. He ought to be re-elected. This is due not to him only, but to the people themselves. When the people show a disposition to re-elect a man who does well, it is not only a proper inference to honorable ambition, but an evidence that people rightly estimate the qualifications and opportunities of the position. We do not urge the re-election of Mr. George as a compliment to himself, but as manifestly the best thing to do, under existing circumstances to secure efficient service to the state.

The Dallas, who is presented as candidate for the office of state senator, is a man of recognized talents and honorable history, and has long been one of the most enterprising and successful business men of Eastern Oregon.

He is, however, too much inclined to public life, and is less inclined to business, but has given up his law office, and is now engaged in mining and other pursuits.

Mr. Z. F. Moody, the Dallas, who is presented as candidate for the office of state senator, is a man of recognized talents and honorable history, and has long been one of the most enterprising and successful business men of Eastern Oregon. He is, however, too inclined to public life, and is less inclined to business, but has given up his law office, and is now engaged in mining and other pursuits.

Mr. W. H. Bybee, the Dallas, who is presented as candidate for the office of state senator, is a man of great ability and experience.

He is, however, too much inclined to public life,

and is less inclined to business, but has given up

his law office, and is now engaged in mining and

other pursuits.

Mr. J. C. Foster, the Dallas, who is presented

as candidate for the office of state senator, is a man of great ability and experience.

He is, however, too much inclined to public life,

and is less inclined to business, but has given up

his law office, and is now engaged in mining and

other pursuits.

Mr. G. E. Moore, the Dallas, who is presented

as candidate for the office of state senator, is a

man of great ability and experience.

He is, however, too much inclined to public life,

and is less inclined to business, but has given up

his law office, and is now engaged in mining and

other pursuits.

Mr. J. C. Foster, the Dallas, who is presented

as candidate for the office of state senator, is a

man of great ability and experience.

He is, however, too much inclined to public life,

and is less inclined to business, but has given up

his law office, and is now engaged in mining and

other pursuits.

Mr. J. C. Foster, the Dallas, who is presented

as candidate for the office of state senator, is a

man of great ability and experience.

He is, however, too much inclined to public life,

and is less inclined to business, but has given up

his law office, and is now engaged in mining and

other pursuits.

Mr. J. C. Foster, the Dallas, who is presented

as candidate for the office of state senator, is a

man of great ability and experience.

He is, however, too much inclined to public life,

and is less inclined to business, but has given up

his law office, and is now engaged in mining and

other pursuits.

Mr. J. C. Foster, the Dallas, who is presented

as candidate for the office of state senator, is a

man of great ability and experience.

He is, however, too much inclined to public life,

and is less inclined to business, but has given up

his law office, and is now engaged in mining and

other pursuits.

Mr. J. C. Foster, the Dallas, who is presented

as candidate for the office of state senator, is a

man of great ability and experience.

He is, however, too much inclined to public life,

and is less inclined to business, but has given up

his law office, and is now engaged in mining and

other pursuits.

Mr. J. C. Foster, the Dallas, who is presented

as candidate for the office of state senator, is a

man of great ability and experience.

He is, however, too much inclined to public life,

and is less inclined to business, but has given up

his law office, and is now engaged in mining and

other pursuits.

Mr. J. C. Foster, the Dallas, who is presented

as candidate for the office of state senator, is a

man of great ability and experience.

He is, however, too much inclined to public life,

and is less inclined to business, but has given up

his law office, and is now engaged in mining and

other pursuits.

Mr. J. C. Foster, the Dallas, who is presented

as candidate for the office of state senator, is a

man of great ability and experience.

He is, however, too much inclined to public life,

and is less inclined to business, but has given up

his law office, and is now engaged in mining and

other pursuits.

Mr. J. C. Foster, the Dallas, who is presented

as candidate for the office of state senator, is a

man of great ability and experience.

He is, however, too much inclined to public life,

and is less inclined to business, but has given up

his law office, and is now engaged in mining and

other pursuits.

Mr. J. C. Foster, the Dallas, who is presented

as candidate for the office of state senator, is a

man of great ability and experience.

He is, however, too much inclined to public life,

and is less inclined to business, but has given up

his law office, and is now engaged in mining and

other pursuits.

Mr. J. C. Foster, the Dallas, who is presented

as candidate for the office of state senator, is a

man of great ability and experience.

He is, however, too much inclined to public life,

and is less inclined to business, but has given up

his law office, and is now engaged in mining and

other pursuits.

Mr. J. C. Foster, the Dallas, who is presented

as candidate for the office of state senator, is a

man of great ability and experience.

He is, however, too much inclined to public life,

and is less inclined to business, but has given up

his law office, and is now engaged in mining and

other pursuits.

Mr. J. C. Foster, the Dallas, who is presented

as candidate for the office of state senator, is a

man of great ability and experience.

He is, however, too much inclined to public life,

and is less inclined to business, but has given up

his law office, and is now engaged in mining and

other pursuits.

Mr. J. C. Foster, the Dallas, who is presented

as candidate for the office of state senator, is a

man of great ability and experience.

He is, however, too much inclined to public life,

and is less inclined to business, but has given up

his law office, and is now engaged in mining and

other pursuits.

Mr. J. C. Foster, the Dallas, who is presented

as candidate for the office of state senator, is a

man of great ability and experience.

He is, however, too much inclined to public life,

and is less inclined to business, but has given up

his law office, and is now engaged in mining and

other pursuits.

Mr. J. C. Foster, the Dallas, who is presented

as candidate for the office of state senator, is a

man of great ability and experience.

He is, however, too much inclined to public life,

and is less inclined to business, but has given up

his law office, and is now engaged in mining and

other pursuits.

Mr. J. C. Foster, the Dallas, who is presented

as candidate for the office of state senator, is a

man of great ability and experience.

He is, however, too much inclined to public life,

and is less inclined to business, but has given up

his law office, and is now engaged in mining and

other pursuits.

Mr. J. C. Foster, the Dallas, who is presented

as candidate for the office of state senator, is a

man of great ability and experience.

He is, however, too much inclined to public life,

and is less inclined to business, but has given up

his law office, and is now engaged in mining and

other pursuits.

Mr. J. C. Foster, the Dallas, who is presented

as candidate for the office of state senator, is a

man of great ability and experience.

He is, however, too much inclined to public life,

and is less inclined to business, but has given up

his law office, and is now engaged in mining and

other pursuits.

Mr. J. C. Foster, the Dallas, who is presented

as candidate for the office of state senator, is a man of great ability and experience.

